Zab Super Judah landed at Newark Airport today to begin his final preparations to fight Argentine knock-out artist Lucas Matthyse at Newark's Prudential Center on Saturday, November 6th.

The voluble Judah plans to train in Teaneck at Body Shapers Gym and looks forward to being joined by fellow Brooklynite and Former World Champion Iron Mike Tyson, who will accompany him into the ring during the HBO Boxing After Dark broadcast.

Bill Halkias, VP Super Judah Promotions said, Super Judah Promotions is excited to be part of an exciting night of boxing that includes what will be a night of fireworks between Zab Judah and Lucas Matthyse. Zab was very well aware of what he needed to do in training camp to get his 40th victory. He looks stronger and sharper than ever. Halkias added, Actions speak louder than words and at this point in Zabs life he chooses to allow his actions to speak for him. Please join us on November 6th at The Prudential Center in Newark and be part of history as Zab makes a bold statement on his way back to dominating the junior welterweight division.

Super Judah told us, Im excited to be back in Newark. I want to show my fans what a well prepared Super Judah is capable of. Ive been training harder than ever for November 6th. Im focused and in the best shape of my life. I want all my fans to join me at the Prudential Center. I promise it will be a night to remember. GODSPEED!

Mike Tyson, added his support, I watched Zab in the Gym a few days ago and he looked spectacular. Better than Ive ever seen him before. I will be at The Prudential Center sitting front and center to support my friend Zab.

Judah vs. Matthyse, a twelve round NABO junior welterweight championship bout, is part of an exciting night of boxing at Newark's Prudential Center on Saturday, November 6. The show is presented by Main Events, Super Judah Promotions, and Golden Boy Promotions. Doors open at 6:00pm, first bout to follow immediately. The HBO Boxing After Dark telecast begins at 11:15pm ET / PT.
