HBO SPORTS®' DIGITAL SERIES RING LIFE

TO FEATURE JUNIOR WELTERWEIGHT STARS DEVON ALEXANDER AND TIMOTHY BRADLEY WITH INDIVIDUAL PROFILES

– Series featured on HBO.com, HBO Mobile, HBO ON DEMAND®
HBO's YouTube Channel and Apple's iTunes –

New York, N.Y., Jan. 11, 2011 – On the upcoming installment of the HBO Sports digital series Ring Life, two of the world's premier fighters -- both of whom possess a perfect record and are slated to meet in a highly anticipated showdown on HBO's World Championship Boxing® on Jan. 29 -- will be featured in separate profiles: Ring Life presents the compelling backstories of undefeated junior welterweights Devon Alexander and Timothy Bradley on all the digital media platforms that distribute the series.

Alexander, from St. Louis, MO, and Bradley out of Palm Springs, CA, both of whom hold titles in the ultra-competitive 140-pound division. These two rising American stars will be facing off in a unification showdown in the Pontiac Silverdome on Jan. 29.

Intimate, honest and compelling, Ring Life, narrated by Jim Lampley, the accomplished host for HBO's World Championship Boxing, chronicles the lives of up-and-coming and inspirational fighters as they define the spirit of boxing; balancing jobs, family life, training, expectations and the pursuit of their dreams. Front and center in these fighters' lives, Ring Life presents a chapter on each fighter that delves inside their hearts and minds to discover what drives them in the ring and beyond, in the ultra competitive sport of professional boxing.

Question: are you guys truly amped for this fight? Or is the network making a bigger deal of it than it should be made of? I don't know, I'm not gettin the tingle for this one...yet....I guess I feel like we can make a big deal of the winner, IF the fight is a barnburner.

Radam G says:

Absolutely NOT am I liking this bout! Tim Bradley is superhyped -- a real Long Tall Paul Williams's green shortie. His best weapon is a severe head butt, he's supertight from lifting weights like a weight lifter. He's not improving as a fighter. Alexander "The Great" is good and improving. Neither fighter is ready for BIG, BIG TIME, Yet! Enough said! Holla!

Editor Mike says:

Yeah, I feel it is jumping a gun to overhype this one. More tests, more seasoning needed. Bradley is what Bradley is...Devon will grow...but he cannot be life and death with Kotelnick, and
