HARTFORD (March 26, 2012) - Professional boxing returns to Hartford, Saturday night, April 14 at the Connecticut Convention Center as Ring Promotions, in association with Big Six Entertainment, presents "Stepping Up."

"I'm looking forward to working with Dr. Roland Estrada and Artie DePinho from Big Six Entertainment to bring an exciting, competitive show to Hartford," Ring Promotions president Bob Duffy said. "Connecticut has a rich boxing tradition dating back to the great

Willie Pep

, through the

Marlon Starling

days, and more recently

Chad Dawson

. We plan to give young fighters like those fighting on the April 14 card a chance to box more often at home. Other promoters have come and gone, not really giving them a fair shake, but we plan to give young fighters from Hartford and throughout Connecticut opportunities to develop right here."

The main event features the return of Hartford fan favorite Addy Irizarry (8-5, 2 KOs), who has been sidelined since November 20, 2010, when she fractured her ankle in a first-round loss to former International Female Boxing Association ("IFBA") World welterweight champion

Jill Emery

. Irizarry is scheduled to face welterweight

Sarah Kuhn

(4-1-1, 1 KO) in an eight-round bout.

Also fighting on the card in separate four-round bouts are Waterbury junior welterweight Jair Ramos

(2-0, 1 KO), Holyoke (MA) light heavyweight

Reinaldo Graceski

(1-0) and Hartford light heavyweight

Tylon Burris

(1-0), Hartford lightweight

Chazz McDowell

(5-1, 1 KO), Providence super middleweight

Ramiel Shelton

(0-4) vs. Springfield's

Jose Angel Ortiz
