TSS Universe, are you happy with Ortiz as Floyd's comeback foe? Weigh in, in the Forum. Could Ortiz do some damage against Floyd, who let's face it is no spring chicken, at age 34? (Hogan)

Welcome back, Floyd.

We've all been regaled with tales of your betting wizardry, and fascinated by your legal woes. But we're all happy to hear that you are going back to where you belong, the ring.

Mayweather, who last gloved up on May 1, 2010, against Shane Mosley, told fightfans via Twitter that he is getting back to business.

"My fans have been waiting long enough," Mayweather Tweeted. "Floyd Mayweather vs Victor Ortiz. Sept-17 2011 for the WBC World Championship."

Cue the applause. Ortiz is a young gun who stepped it up in his last outing, when he won a knockdown-a-thon against unbeaten Andre Berto, and snatched Berto's WBC welterweight title.

The 34-year-old Mayweather (41-0 with 25 KOs) has been picked apart, in many circles, for picking and choosing his foes with more deliberateness than some would say befits a legend. Why, people have asked, doesn't Floyd seek out the best and brightest in any and all divisions near the welterweight limit, and prove with his deeds that he is an all-time great, worthy of being lumped in with the Sugars, and The Greatest? By taking on the 24-year-old Ortiz, Floyd can spurn the argument that he cherry picks faded vets, like Shane Mosley, or Juan Manuel Marquez, who he fought while weighing in at 146 pounds, two over the contracted weight of 144 pounds or less.

Ok, OK, everyone thinks the fight that makes the most sense, that would earn the most dollars and perk up interest in circles that typically turn a blind eye to boxing, is Mayweather-Pacquiao.

But as I discussed in an article I posted on June 6, let's focus on the concrete, on the here and now. Mayweather against the 29-2-2 southpaw Ortiz is a meaningful match.

Welcome back, Floyd.

ultimoshogun says:

Welcome back indeed...I didn't know what to expect when I read about Floyd's announcement today but this is pretty good news. I like the matchup, Ortiz appears to have gotten his confidence back...this should be a very entertaining fight! Also, USADA testing has been confirmed for this one.

Radam G says:

I'm calling it NOW! Vicious Victor Ortiz is going to do some serious damage to Money May. Money May might edge him out and get a decision, but the damage that MM will suffer will not be worth it. The real reason that Money May is fighting Victor is that da Vicious One is a pseudo-lefthander -- a natural righty, who was too darn hardheaded and lazy to adapt to fighting the correct way. [Don't bring up Michael Moorer or Winky Wright, they were gifted exceptions to the rule. And Marvelous Marvin Hagler was not a southpaw. He fought on both sides. So somebody oughta get that right and recognize.]

See forget about all that jive that the talking heads spit. A natural righthanded fighter should fight as such. He take away his edge and power when his tries to mimic us. This dang world was Anyways, great fight for boxing and for a die-hard Floyd Mayweather Jr (41-0) like myself hands down.

amayseng says:

wait, so why isnt floyd fighting pacman??

the fight 5 billion people have asked for for 2 years??

floyd dont want none of pacman, truth be told....

and the thing is, i think floyd beats pacman last year, but this fall, with the inactivity and his sliding speed and reflexes not this fall..

ultimoshogun says:

C'mon amayseng, your boy Pacman aint exactly chomping at the bit to fight Mayweather either...in the post fight interview vs Mosley when asked about Mayweather he responded with "I don't care for that fight" or something to that effect. I still think the mega fight happens next year.

undisputed34 says:

i think this might be interesting..i see this as a possible tune up for a future pacman fight...young, strong, not necessarily quick but he has youth on his side..and he's a legitimate champ who's had the media's eye so he has that to capitalize on..the kids still not to technically skilled and doesnt have the veteran pedigree nor experience to change tactics when he finds out whatever his gameplan against Mayweather is, isnt working.. a safe fight for floyd while giving the illusion of danger and competetivenss for the fans. Oh and i think mayweather should win. repeat of floyd and gatti..what do you guys think?

Radam G says:

make the types and amounts of purses that he desire. It is no standing rule that fighters must do any type of jive for his legacy. Who knows, Money May may get what Sugar Ray did. The Sugar ducked an opponent off the "Black Murder Row," and took on small-coming-up-in-weight Carmen Basilio. CB dust that arse and took the Sugarman's belt. Sometimes syet repeats iitself years later.

Money May has ducked the Aispanic/Hispanic Murder Row for years. Now he is taking on a-new-in-the-weight-class, green-arse Hispanic from the Green [or small] Row. History could repeat itself and Vicious Victor may just upset Money May at the Cowboy Palace near Dallas. Nobody gave CB a chance against SRR. But we know "Un Mundo, muchas historias." Don't be surprised to READ: Vicious Victor UPSET Money May in a sleeper. ZZZZZZZZZZ! Holla!

ultimoshogun says:

@undisputed, I gotta disagree with you on the Gatti comparison, if the Ortiz who fought Berto shows up for the Mayweather fight, no way he gets owned like Gatti. I'm thinking it could be as close as DLH/Mayweather if Ortiz brings it and leaves it all in the ring.

Shoulder Roll Defense says:

It appears that you have a lot of animosity towards the G.O.A.T. (Sugar Ray Robinson). He is the greatest prizefighter that ever lived and you shouldn't mention Manny or Floyd in the same breath as him. However, Floyd is the most skilled boxer of this generation. He should beat Ortiz by UD and I think he will have a tougher time with Ortiz then he would with Pac Man. Floyd would pot shot Manny and use his 5 or 6 inch reach advantage against him to win a UD against him, just like he did against Marquez.

Money May is no P4P king back in the ring. He is a jester and a woman molester, who cannot dance or sing. But he tries. Just as Sugar Ray Robinson did. But da Moneyman is one UP on the da Sugarman. Da Moneyman fought "fast, slick African American" boxers and beat 'em. Da Sugarman sparred with 'em and got da fudge knocked down and out, and fired 'em and never stepped in dat squared jungle with 'em. He ducked 'em like a muthacoward. But it is all good, because he understood that he was prizefighting, not pridefighting. [He couldn't get paid righteously for dancing with "Colored fighters."> But this nowadays nostaglia about da Sugarman will not WORK for those in da KNOW. Just as it won't WORK in 30 to 50 years for those in da KNOW about da Moneyman, when it comes to how he ducked an Aispanic and a lot of primed Hispanics. Besides, Lil' Floyd is now prime time long-in-da-tooth for gettin' upset by a green-arse kiddy Hispanic kickarser. Don't be surprised to see Vicious Victor do to him what Carmen Basilio did to Sugar Ray Robinson by in da day in their first bout -- UPSET DA ARROGRANT, COCKY ARSE!

I expect reader ali to get on his hater stalking. Dat sucka come at me like white on rice. WTF! Did somebodee and dey momma tell dat mutter, sutter, cyberspace clutter sucka to try to take down da one and only Radam G, and that he'll get a BIG PRICE? Dude oughta get off my back, and put down da crack! Hehehehe! Riding off the word of Genie Naazim Richardson, I'm "cut from a different cloth." Da ali sucka cannot make me join the herd way of thinking and posting. I'll do jive my way. And, OH YEA! I'm a straight-up REAL protege of Irish GOAT Muhammad Ali. So you can never SHUT ME DA F Up! I'll keep rhyming and shinning all that I want. "I don't have to be what you want me to be." And I will not follow the trend way of stepping into da herd syet, because you in the dimwit herd are comfortable with dat smelly jive and faking and fading. I ain't got nuffin' against anybodee, and I call it da way I see and know it. My thoughts belong to me. And I will be RIGHT AGAIN, as I am 95 percent of the time. In this NEW WORLD. There is no bi*tch-a$$ chump cloning ME, so yall know what time it is. You can no longer pull that cloning syet, than say "Radam post this and that, and got it wrong and won't admit to it." Trust me! I'm going to admit dat Vicious Victor Ortiz is going to fudge Money May up in da Cowboy Palace near Dallas. And riding off the word of da Don, "Ya heard [dat syet] here, first, ladies! Holla back!" But don't be surprised to see Money May pull out of the bout, after suffering a phantom injury while training or running. Holla!

Radam G says:

I hope that the Garcia brothers Danny and Robert quit their darn sibling rival and bickering, and get together and school the converted southpaw VVO on how to fire shift punches. Shift punching will fudge up the Mayweather's shoulder roll and put da serious hurt on Money May's arse. In bout one with JL Castillo, Money May's shoulder rolling, two-step strolling and head-drop-south folding got him in a lot of trouble. Shift punching -- especially from a southpaw -- is the predator and mean beast that beats da jive outta da Philly-shell/crab style 99 times out of a 100. And you saw what Sugar Shane's shift-punching right hand did to the account of the Moneyman.

I'd not be surprised to see Vicious Victor do to Money May what Rocky Lockridge did to Uncle Roger May back in the day -- a SHOCK one-round KAYO -- if the Vicious One work at gettin' jiggy with shift punching. Even Super Zab Judah and that other southpaw, who I cannot think of his name right now hurt and knocked Money May down and around with shift punches.. The other southpaw's name is Mc C something like that. He became one of Money May's southpaw sparringmate later.

I have to refer to the Roast again to come with dat sucka's name. Then again, Real Talk may know the sucka, since I believe da sucka is from the Washington D.C. area. At any rate, I think that Money May is bluffing to fight VVO, or has bit off more than he can chew. But remember a lot of things can and may change between now and September. For da fakers and faders in cyberspace Clutterville, who don't know what shift punching is, that is on your arse. Some of the greatest shift punchers were Bob FitzSimmon, Benny Leonard, Jersey Joe Walcott, the Ole Mongoose Archie Moore, GOAT Ali, Sugar Ray Robinson, Sugar Ray Leonard, Big George Foreman, Roberto Duran, Don "Texas Cobra" Curry, Sweet Pea Whitaker, Macho Time Camacho and Mark "Too Sharp" Johnson and also Da Manny, just to name a few. Shoulder Roll Defense says:

I respect your opinions Radam G, but most of the boxing historians and trainers I know agree that Sugar Ray Robinson is the greatest of all-time pound for pound (Bert Sugar, Angelo Dundee, Emanuel Steward, etc). I do agree with you on the fact that he did dodge certain fighters, which is historically common by stars from every era (Jack Johnson, Marciano, etc). Charley Burley would have given Sugar Ray Robinson all he could handle! However, Sugar Ray Robinson at welterweight is arguably the best to ever lace up the gloves. In 1951 he had an amazing record of 128-1-2 with 84 knockouts! I don't think he would have had any problem demolishing any of the welterweights of today, especially Pac Man. Pac Man would have been made to order for Robinson because he comes straight foward and doesn't have great defense. Name me a fighter past or present that is better than a "prime" Sugar Ray Robinson?

[QUOTE=Radam G;6999]Ninety-five percent of the trainers, managers, coaches and boxers present in the days of Sugar Ray Robinson don't speak well of him. He was GREAT, not the greatest. Real Talk, by the way, Reader "ali" was always throwing jive in my face in the old Universe about how he was a son of "Black Panthers." Well, I told him then that my family and a lot of Asian and white families supported the Black Panther Party, but found out that they were so-called "Five Percenters." Now I hope that you know what that it is. The BPP were the ones, who were bringing drugs into the black communities, committing rapes and murders and shaking down stores. You can go and research that jive. Besides it is a national black television channel that exposes many of the Black Panthers as "American gangstas." I'm pretty sure there is somebody in this Universe who can hip you to that channel and show. The BPP had a hookup with drug barrons from Vietnam, Thailand and even Pakistan.

C'mon, MAN! Don't buy da HYPE and romanticism about the Black Panther Party. I just burst bubbles all the time, but people should and need to know the truth. Many of the chief playas of the BPP were FBI informants, anyway. You don't have to take my word for this. I'm sure that there are a lot of people in your locale who will direct you to the righteous, honesty, hardcore research documents about how traitorous and a BIG sellout that the Black Panther Party was. The suckas even beat women and forced them into prostitution. YUP! The Blood and Crips were an offspring of BPP. I bullspit and bullsh*t ya not, bro. I'll be fly ta ya, before I lie ta ya! I school ya, before I fool ya! I'm all about spittin' da whole truth and absolutely no optical illusions. Dude, you really need to holla at serious research and documentation about the BPP. In this age of superzoom reliable information, nobody should be walking around on romanticized mythology. Holla!

Radam G says:

Talking about Sugar Ray Robinson easily beating Da Manny is ridiculous. Do you know exactly how many southpaws that SRR beat and how many beat him? I didn't think so. Hollering at research will do you wonders, Mr Shoulder Roll Defense. IMHO, Sweet Pea Whitaker, Macho Time Camacho, Da Manny and any southpaw with an iota of movement would confuse and use SRR. He didn't only duck da "Black Murder Row," he also did what most other fighter did -- DUCK southpaws. By the way, being 121-1, doesn't mean jack. When you are fighting tomato cans, especially the same fighter about 10 to 15 times under different pseudonyms. Boxing is the hurt business [bitnezz]. Fighters, SRR, included, would travel to nearby and faraway towns fighting the same opponent and beating him tons of times under different names. I know what time it is.

At one time, Wildcat Monte, who had 306 bouts was 140-1. The Alabama Kid and the Cocoa Kid who had over 200 fights were similar to SRR with over a 100 wins and one or two losts. So what are you saying, Mr. Shoulder Roll Defense? You can go to Boxrec and Fightfax and find about 15 fighters with one loss and a 120, 130 and 140 wins with 100 or more kayos. Buck Smith, born in 1965, has close to 200 knockouts. Just saying that SRR was great because of his record of wins and knockouts is bunk. Again, he was a great fighter. Just not the GREATEST, according to a ton of experts who EYEWitness him getting down in the flesh. Everybodee else and dey momma only know the Sugarman's performance from being ear-witnesses and seeing films. Some people say that you cannot tell by films. But I don't think that the camera lies. IMHO from films, Willie Peps looks greater. Holla!

@ radam..all the politics aside..youre going with Vic to upset floyd? thats what i want to know..do you think that vic can learn to "shift punch" and do it well enough disrupt floyd's rhythm? i cant see it...as far as SSR robinson being the greatest, i know whats widely believed, but ive never seen him fight in person so i cant say, and he got down in a different time. what i can say is as far a pacman, floyd and many of the fighters fighting in our era, i think many of those old schoolers that you mentioned, SRR, willie pep, coacoa kid etc, get the best of them for the simple fact of the frequency of which they fought and the length of rounds they were able to go. i watched one of my fave movies yesterday, "unforgivable blackness" and looking at jack johnson go twenty rounds..hell..i like him against haye right now and give him almost even odds against wlad. what do you think?

Real Talk says:

@ Radam, I'm hip to how the Black Panthers went down. It's bad apples in every group of people accross the globe and wolves in sheeps clothes. The temptation of Crack invasion was too much and took a lot of them under. I forgive everyone and let go instead of holding on to it, but we gon spar a lil bit about this boxing smack talk so get ready. What happen to the new look TSSU that was like the original one but an upgrade. I prefer that one cuz it's easier to interact an get some good exchanges. EM....what happen???

Shoulder Roll Defense says:

Muhammad Ali in reference to Sugar Ray Robinson: "The King, the master, my idol." Hall of fame fighters such as Muhammad Ali, Joe Louis, and Sugar Ray Leonard have all gone on record as saying that Sugar Ray Robinson was the greatest. The Ring magazine and ESPN have him rated as the best pound 4 pound fighter ever. There may be a minority of boxing experts that don't consider him the best pound for pound, but the dominant consensus is the boxing community is that he was the greatest to ever lace the gloves up! You are entitled to your opinion Radam G, but Ray Robinson had a sweet style and could have fought in any era. However, with all the praise that Robinson deserves; Floyd Mayweather jr. might be the most technically brilliant fighter to ever step in the ring. He is arguably the greatest defensive fighter ever, better technically than Pep or Whitaker. Skill wise, he is definitely the best fighter of his era!

[QUOTE=Radam G;7029]Shoulder Roll Defense, I am talking about the super experts, not low-level ones and boxing scribes. The late, great Gil Glancy didn't agree that SRR is the best ever. The late, great Eddie Futch didn't agree. The very live Angelo Dundee doesn't agree. Lou Duva doesn't agree. Ham Johnson doesn't agree. Billy Miller doesn't agree. Jesse Reid doesn't agree. Nacho Beristein doesn't agree. You get my point. Sugar Ray Robinson was a creation of civil rights avocates, just as all the great Robinsons were. Jackie Robinsons, Oscar Robinsons, Smokey Robinsons, Robinsons, Robinsons, etc., etc., These civil rights jokers love to give the African Americans Robinsons to admire, believe in and cheer for. They don't dig Jack Johnson and Muhammad Ali or any REAL GREAT P4P sportsman of color. I ain't African American, but I know what time it is. Holla!/[QUOTE]

Whether Floyd deserves the honor of being called this generations Sugar Ray Robinson is yet to be seen. Sugar Ray has always been one the greatest ever. I don't see anybody trying to remove him from the hall of fame. You won't find anybody who is anybody in boxing discredit his accomplishments. Sugar Ray Leonard burned a little brighter for the brief time he was boxing..SRR lasted longer . Sources.far more creditable than anyone in these forums have already expressed his excellence in the sport of boxing..

Shoulder Roll Defense says:

Radam G, you never answered my question. Who is the is the greatest of all-time if it SRR? You sound like a hater! I don't care if Manny is a southpaw. Ray Robinson had a granite chin, power in both hands, and was naturally bigger than the Pac Man. He would knock Manny out with in 5 rounds. When analyzing Floyd Mayweather jr., stick to the boxing facts. He has issues outside of the ring, but who are any of us to judge? Inside the ring, he is a beast and one of the best fighters this generation. If you really know boxing, you wouldn't be predicting Victor Ortiz to beat Mayweather in September. Mayweather is in another galaxy in the skill department and will win this fight by decision. Don't run off the board when Money breaks Ortiz off, holla!

GOAT Ali is also on record in the 1960s as saying "Sugar Ray Robinson is the greatest of all-time." Boxers are some of the greatest diplomats you will ever see. And diplomats change, so don't expect anything less about boxers. [Besides, there are ways that SRL will never praise himself. He's just humble like that. Look at how many years he kept secret about being sexually molested by amateur coaches and trainers. Off the record, boxers know a whole lot of syet dat they won't say on the record until the time is right. But despite that the sexual predators of the Sugarman are dead, Ray is still not revealing them, because he is concern about hurting their families.]

SRL has said a lot of syet "on record numerious times," but not in private or when he is being him. Dude, it is a time for everything under the sun. Everything changes except the tragicomedy of self-marginalization and the hallucinations of demigod and god making. I ain't down with mythomania. turntable. WTF! Talking about being delusional and pertinacious. Everything under the sun gets better. And that is a hard FACT, Jack!

As long as one is not making up New Jack jive, as Fam May loves to do. See Old School is in full effect, when it is working, not mimicking. All the tired boxers, who mimic Sugar Ray Robinson, Sugar Ray Leonard, GOAT Ali, and even Money May, get arses tore up. The game of boxing, as life and time, is about evolution -- not a solution -- as to mimic and believe that way is/was the best ever. The best is always yet to come. Later for all the darn Robinsons. SRR was not the best boxer. Jackie Robinson was not the best baseball player. Oscar Robinson was not the best basketball player. Smokey Robinson was not the best singer. And even Family Robinson was not the best Outer Space Family. Hehehehehe! Give me a fudging BREAK! Enough with the Robinsons.
