After fighting under the radar for several years, Argentinean strongman Lucas Matthyse (32-2 , 30 KO's) began breaking through on the international scene in 2010-11 after controversial decision losses to

Zab Judah

and

Devon Alexander

, which many ringside observers believe he won. Following those defeats, he decided to take things out of the judges' hands. What followed were four consecutive knockout wins, including a 2012 finish of

Humberto Soto

in June and a 10

round TKO of

Ajose Olusegun

, the latter victory earning him the WBC Interim Super Lightweight title that he will defend on January 26.

One of California's top young talents, Bakersfield's Mike "The Silent Assassin" Dallas Jr. (19-2-1, 8 KO's) has learned from his experiences in the ring over the last four-plus years. After bouncing back from losses to

Josesito Lopez

and

Mauricio Herrera

in 2011 with wins against

Miguel Gonzalez

and

Javier Castro

in 2012, he's ready to make his move in 2013. The 26-year-old Dallas can make an emphatic statement to the boxing world with a win over Matthyse at the end of next month.

A native of Turkey who fights out of Hamburg, Germany, hard-nosed battler Selcuk Aydin (23-1, 17 KO's) has long been one of the top European fighters in the world, winning European, WBC International, and WBC Silver titles. In July of 2012, Aydin returned to fight in the United States for the first time in three years and gave a grueling 12-round battle before losing a decision in their WBC Interim Welterweight World Championship bout. On January 26, the 29-year-old is back stateside and looking to take out perennial contender Jesus Soto Karass.

Highly respected by his peers and a growing fan base that appreciates his work ethic and aggressive fighting style, Los Mochis, Mexico's Jesus Soto Karass (26-8-3, 17 KO's) has paid his dues fighting the best competition possible over the years and is finally starting to get his time in the spotlight. An 11 year pro, the 30-year-old has won two of his last three bouts, with the only loss coming in a Fight of the Year candidate against in September of 2012. Knowing Soto Karass' style, once all is said and done, his bout with Aydin may receive that same consideration.

After putting together three big wins in 2012, Houston's Jermell Charlo (19-0, 9 KO's) is looing forward to topping that total in 2013, and he begins that quest on January 26. The winner of bouts over

Chatman

and

Dashon Johnson

this year, the talented 22-year-old known as the "Iron Man" will be ready for whoever is placed across the ring from him in the SHOWTIME opener.

Chris

, D

Fighting out of Newcastle, Australia, Chad "Hollywood" Bennett (30-4-3, 21 KO's) has been on a tear of late, winning six straight over the last two years, with five of those victories coming by knockout. The current WBO Asia Pacific Junior Welterweight Champion, the 39-year-old Bennett will return to fight in the United States for the first time since 2010 to defend his title against Accra, Ghana's

Ben

Ankrah

(17-11, 8 KO's). A 12-year veteran of the sport, the 33-year-old Ankrah has won six of his last seven, and considering that he has ended five of those victories by knockout, expect some explosive action when he squares off against Bennett.
