The series, known for taking viewers into the dramatic and unpredictable world of prize fighting, will explore the life of Floyd Mayweather from his humble beginnings in Grand Rapids, Mich., to the height of success at the pinnacle of the sport.

Inside his training camp, Mayweather addresses the turbulent family dynamic that has shaped his character. "I just happen to have two of the best trainers in the world in my family," says Mayweather of his father, Floyd, Sr., and his uncle Roger Mayweather, who are working side-by-side in the gym. "We should work together as one. I feel that we are stronger together than apart."

The series introduces fans to Robert Guerrero, the man who plans to be the first to defeat Mayweather. Hailing from a drastically different background, ALL ACCESS acquaints viewers with Guerrero's story of triumph, tragedy and his insatiable will to believe. Guerrero speaks about his mission of ministry and the opportunity to use this platform to speak to millions of people the world over. "I try to take every opportunity I have to do something good. To inspire people. I work hard. I train hard. I give it all I've got because I know the Lord has blessed me with a tremendous talent. I have to be a shining light with that talent."

Witness the fighters prepare in their own ways, in their own words, for boxing's biggest event of the year. From their heated first encounter at the SHOWTIME PPV commercial shoot, to the grueling days of training camp, to Guerrero's East Coast media tour that ended in controversy, ALL ACCESS: MAYWEATHER vs. GUERRERO is there for it all.

Renowned documentarian Ross Greenburg serves as an executive producer on the series. New episodes debut every Wednesday through May 1 on SHOWTIME, with encore

Thanks for the warning -- I mean heads up! Holla!

Now this might be pretty good..

SouthPaul says:

I'll have my ears open mostly for Common. A good narrator is most important. IMO, Liev Schreiber is the best of the best, he definitely took 24/7 to another level. Had enjoyed his narrating work long before that too (does a lot stuff for History Channel).

amayseng says:

Liev is fantastic.

I'm a big fan of Common as well. He is well versed and will do an excellent job.

A Floyd documentary NO thanks.

A Floyd training camp all access yes please.

This is where Floyd shines, no not by failing at being funny but by showing his perfectionist character in training and preparation.

Don't gloat Floyd, just show the world how hard u work and what it takes to be a champion.

Just caught the last 15 minutes of it. Narrating was solid but nothing overly impressive . Floyd sounded nasally, bit congested . Possible cold?

Radam G says:

And the Cali Humbug Ghost sounded full of'syet and fake machiso. I'll not be surprised to see his Jesus-is-on-my-side @ss go down by kayo. Terrible all access. HBO 24/7 was more thrilling. No hate! But Showtime All Access is illing. Holla!
