Lane's signature line, "Let's Get It On" at the end of referee's instructions to the fighters and their chief seconds, signaled it was fight time to fighters and fans alike. Lane refereed World Championship bouts throughout the 1970's, '80's and '90's. His fellow inductee, former Nevada State Athletic Commission Executive Director Marc Ratner said, "Whenever we assigned Mills Lane, we never had a second thought. Upon his retirement as a referee, Lane entered the world of promotion, founding "Let's Get It On" Promotions. He then furthered his brand, becoming a TV reality star in the show "Judge Mills Lane". Unfortunately, he suffered a debilitating stroke in 2002, and has only rarely been seen in public since. However, Lane is making it a point to attend his induction into the NVBHOF.

Lane's son Terry, who along with brother Tommy, now run "Let's Get It On Promotions" said, "My dad feels honored to be inducted into the Nevada Boxing Hall of Fame. It is even more special that he is part of the inaugural class. From fighting to refereeing, the vast majority of my Dad's career in boxing took place in our great state. My Dad lives in Nevada. It is where he made his home, and boxing brought him here."

Lane boxed at the college level for the University of Nevada in Reno. He served as Washoe County District Attorney and lives in Reno. He goes into the Hall in the "Officials" category along with fellow Nevadan Joe Cortez

Lane was recently inducted into the International Boxing Hall of Fame at Canastota.
