New York, NY (7/12/13) - Next Friday, July 19, ESPN's Friday Night Fights returns to the historic Rockingham Park in New Hampshire, with a scintillating 10-round main event featuring WBC #3-rated junior welterweight Olusegun Ajoose (31-1, 14KO's) taking on longtime lightweight contender "Hammerin'" Hank Lundy (22-3-1, 11KO's).

In the co-feature bout, undefeated up-and-coming prospects Ryan "The Polish Prince" Kielczweski (16-0, 3KO's) and Miguel "Mikito" Soto (11-0, 11KO's) put their unblemished records on the line in an eight-round super featherweight showdown.

The rest of the card features a bevy of both New England and regional talent including highly regarded undefeated heavyweight prospect Alexis Santos (9-0, 8KO's) from Lawrence, MA taking on his toughest opponent to date when he squares off against Newark, New Jersey's Marlon Hayes (23-11, 11KO's). The bout is scheduled for six rounds.

The three additional heavyweight bouts scheduled for the card, are highlighted by St. Louis, Missouri's Charles Martin (8-0-1, 7KO's) putting his undefeated record on the line against Aaron Kinch (5-1-1, 1KO) and Jonathan Hamm (7-1, 5KO's) squaring off against fellow once beaten Daniel Martz (8-1, 6KO's). Both bouts are scheduled for six rounds.

The remainder of the card features four top young fighters out of the New England boxing scene, squaring off against fellow local talent. The all New England match-ups will undoubtedly make for an electric atmosphere at the historic park.
