Bryant Jennings (16-0, 8 KO's) held a media workout today in preparation for his June 14th NBC Sports Network Fight Night clash against Andrey Fedosov (24-2, 19 KO's). The fight is part of a triple header on a 7-bout card that will be held at Sands Casino Resort Bethlehem.

Also part of the triple header is a 12-round IBF light heavyweight eliminator showcasing Segey Kovalev (20-0-1, 18 KO's) vs. Cornelius White (21-1, 16 KO's) and a 10-round welterweight battle featuring Ronald Cruz (17-1, 12 KO's) vs. Raymond Narh (25-2, 21 KO's). The NBC Sports Network telecast begins at 8PM EDT.

Why take this fight with Fedosov? Boxing is a business. You have to build yourself, your marketability. This is our business we hit, we get hit, it's what we do. I'm not gonna just wait around. A lot of it is patience. Patience is very much needed in this sport. As I always say, 'welcome to the fight game.'
