

ESPN Films' 30 for 30 Series Continues with Sugar Ray Leonard and Roberto Duran Documentary, No Más

ESPN Films' Peabody award-winning 30 for 30 film series continues with No Más, which will premiere on Tuesday, October 15, at 8 p.m. ET on ESPN (following a special premiere on ESPN Deportes on Saturday, Oct. 12, at 9 p.m.) The film, directed by Eric Drath (Renee), chronicles the rivalry of boxing legends Sugar Ray Leonard and Roberto Duran.

In the midst of boxing's contemporary golden age -- the 1980's -- stood two fighters who established a captivating rivalry. Their pair of bouts within a span of just over 5 months in 1980 had all the trappings of instant classics. Sugar Ray Leonard, an American hero, who had become a household name after a Gold Medal-winning performance at the 1976 Summer Olympics that led to numerous corporate sponsorships, versus the lightweight champion Roberto Duran of Panama, the toughest -- some said meanest -- fighter of all time. It was not just the drama and action of these fights that would endure, but those two words uttered in the second of their clashes, which would create a sense of mystery, bewilderment and intrigue to the present day. Through Leonard's journey to Panama to see his old rival in search of closure, No Más looks for answers to Duran's stunning decision to quit in the middle of a championship fight.

Remaining films in the fall slate will air as follows:

- Tuesday, Oct. 15, 8 p.m. – No Más* (Director:Eric Drath)
- Tuesday, Oct. 22, 8 p.m. – Big Shot* (Director:Kevin Connolly)

About ESPN Films

Created in March 2008, ESPN Films produces high-quality films showcasing some of the most compelling stories in sports. In October 2009, ESPN Films launched the Peabody Award-winning, Producer's Guild Award-winning and Emmy-nominated 30 for 30 film series. Inspired by ESPN's 30th Anniversary, the films that made up the series were a thoughtful and innovative reflection on the past three decades told through the lens of diverse and interesting sports fans and social commentators. The strong reaction from both critics and fans led to the launch of

30 for 30 Volume II

, which is currently underway. Additional projects from ESPN Films include the critically acclaimed
