

"As for Berto/Ortiz, I think Showtime has a winner. For me, neither guy has ever proven to be truly elite but stylistically these two are made for each other. Berto is just flat out limited by his horrible footwork and poor balance but he can bang. And he will have to because the Victor "The Loose Cannon" Ortiz can bring it, especially in the first half of any given fight. This one might be a repeat but I think Berto can redeem himself as long as Victor hasn't already become a Middleweight by the time they meet the night of the fight. Look for Foreman Lyle with Andre Berto rising first. From the pile." --TSS reader Fe'Roz emerges from the lurker shadows, and as always, offers concise, wise words